All 20 Baby-Sitters Club graphic novels in order: 19 out as of 30 October 2026, the 20th due 29 December 2026, and why the numbers differ from the novels.

There are twenty Baby-Sitters Club graphic novels. As of 30 October 2026, nineteen are out, and the twentieth, Kristy and the Mother's Day Surprise, is due on 29 December 2026. That day comes from a bookseller and a fan guide, not from Scholastic, so it may move. Peabody's Baby-Sitters Club page has all twenty as a checklist that prints as a reading log.

These are the Scholastic Graphix comics adapted from Ann M. Martin's novels, drawn by Raina Telgemeier and other artists. A group of friends start a business looking after the neighbourhood's children, and each book follows one of them through a problem.

The titles, order and years come from Bookroo's series page. The day for book 19 comes from Bookroo's page for it. Wikipedia's Baby-Sitters Club article agrees on the early titles. We opened all of them on 30 October 2026.

About book 20's day

We found 29 December 2026 in two places: The Book Co.'s listing and an independent fan guide, How to Love Comics. Both are useful. Neither is the publisher. Scholastic's own pages would not open for us, so we couldn't confirm the day with them. Release days set by booksellers do sometimes shift, so check close to the time. On the series page, book 20 shows dashed until its day and can't be ticked before then.

Why the numbers differ from the novels

The graphic novels don't retell every book in Ann M. Martin's prose series. They skip some, so the numbers drift apart. Kristy and the Mother's Day Surprise is number 20 in the graphic novels and number 24 in the novels. If a child moves between the two, go by title, not number.

You can also see a long gap in the table. The first four came out between 2006 and 2008. Book 5 followed in 2017, and the series has kept a steady pace since.

Does the order matter?

Not much. Each book tells one story from one of the novels, so a child can start with any of them. Reading in number order is the easiest way to meet the friends one at a time, and the stories follow the order of the novels. Most books bring in a new cast member to learn, and going in order makes that easier.

What age the graphic novels are for

We put them at 8 to 12, and that is Peabody's own estimate. Bookroo and The Book Co. list them as ages 8 to 12, with grades 3 to 7 on the newest, but they are sellers, not the publisher. Scholastic's pages, where its own age would be, didn't load.

An age is a guess at who will enjoy a book, not a reading level. The speech bubbles are chatty and there are a lot of feelings on each page. The series page tells grown-ups what is in the books: arguments between friends, a crush or two, a family change and a little mystery, with a light touch. A few stories deal with older-child worries, so look at one first if a topic matters in your house.

What isn't on the list

- The novels. Ann M. Martin's prose series is separate and much longer, with its own numbers.
- Baby-Sitters Little Sister graphic novels. A separate, younger set about the little sister of one of the club's members, illustrated by Katy Farina.

Neither is on this checklist.

The reading log and what comes next

On the series page, tap each book your child has read. The ticks stay on your device; nothing is sent to us. Print it for one page with all twenty titles and a box beside each. My Shelf prints every series your child reads on one page.

When they're done, what to read after the Baby-Sitters Club has picks by age. Click is another true-to-life school comic, and Berrybrook Middle School is a step up.

Questions grown-ups ask

How many Baby-Sitters Club graphic novels are there?

Twenty numbered books. Nineteen are out as of 30 October 2026. The twentieth is due on 29 December 2026, a day we found from a bookseller, not from Scholastic.

Which Baby-Sitters Club graphic novel is first?

Kristy's Great Idea (2006). It shows how the club starts, so it is the easiest place to begin.

Are the graphic novel numbers the same as the novels?

No. The graphic novels skip some of the novels, so their numbers run lower. Book 20 in the graphic novels is book 24 in the novels.
